

The Canadian Legal Literacy Foundation
Canadian Law Review Quarterly
Content Guide

Submissions must adhere to the criteria detailed in this section at the time of submission and thereafter. Canadian Law Review Quarterly reserves the right to reject a manuscript at any point after initial acceptance of the submission (including after publication) if the manuscript is found to be in breach of the criteria outlined herein.

CONTENT

All papers must pertain to legal subject matter. Acceptable subject matter may include legislation, jurisprudence, legal theory, legal history, sociology of law, law and politics, or any other subject matter primarily concerned with law. Canadian Law Review Quarterly only accepts the following types of submissions:

1. Academic essays;
2. Case notes;
3. Legal commentaries; or
4. Legal articles in an op-ed format.

All manuscripts must be complete at the time of submission. Incomplete manuscripts will not be considered. A complete manuscript must contain all of the following:

1. A title;
2. The author's name;
3. An abstract (~200 words);
4. The essay;
5. Section headings (preferred);
6. In-text citations in the form of footnotes; and
7. A complete bibliography.

You may include tables and figures as relevant.

Citations should be formatted according to the Canadian Guide to Uniform Legal Citation, 10th edition (a.k.a., "McGill style") published by the McGill Law Journal. If you are unfamiliar with or cannot access the Guide, please format citations according to The Chicago Manual of Style, 18th edition ("Chicago" or "CMOS").

AUTHORSHIP, PLAGIARISM & ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE

Submissions must constitute the work of a single, human author. Canadian Law Review Quarterly does not accept manuscripts that have been produced, in whole or in part, by parties besides the submitting author. Submissions that contain any or all of the following will not be accepted:

The Canadian Legal Literacy Foundation
Canadian Law Review Quarterly
Content Guide

1. Plagiarism;
2. Content produced by a person who is not the author of the paper as indicated in this form;
3. Content produced by Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI) and/or Large Language Models (LLMs); and/or
4. Any other breach of the principles of academic integrity and/or render the submission not the work of a single, human author as intended herein.

The editorial board will screen all short-listed articles for all of the above breaches.

If you require accommodations to these on the basis of accessibility, please describe the nature of the exception requested in the "Additional comments" box at the bottom of this page.

OTHER CRITERIA

Besides the information outlined above, submissions must also meet the following minimum requirements to be considered for publication:

1. Maximum 3500 words, excluding cover page, abstract, in-text citations, and bibliography. There is no minimum word count;
2. Not published or forthcoming in publication elsewhere.

By submitting a manuscript to Canadian Law Review Quarterly, you confirm that your submission meets all criteria described herein.